Sample Employee Onboarding Guide

PeopleDesk AI demonstration document — fictional onboarding information

Important notice

This is a fictional onboarding guide for testing document retrieval. Replace it with approved onboarding material for your company before real use.

1. Before your first day

Confirm your start date, reporting manager, work location or remote-work arrangements, and first-day schedule with HR.

Prepare the identity and employment documents specifically requested through the organization's approved process.

Do not send identity documents or personal data to unverified email addresses or unofficial chat accounts.

2. Account and device setup

Follow the official IT instructions to activate your company account and configure multi-factor authentication.

Use only approved devices, software, and storage locations for company work.

Keep your password private. Never approve an unexpected multi-factor authentication prompt; report it through the approved security channel.

3. Learning company policies

Review the approved employee handbook, leave policy, code of conduct, information-security policy, and any role-specific procedures.

If two documents appear inconsistent, ask HR or the responsible policy owner which version is current.

The HR Helpdesk assistant can retrieve information from uploaded documents, but its response is not a substitute for official approval or advice from the responsible team.

4. Working with HR

Contact HR for questions about employment records, benefits, onboarding paperwork, workplace policies, or leave administration.

Use the approved HR channel and provide only the information needed to resolve your question.

Requests involving private employee information should be handled only by authorized personnel.

5. Working with IT

Contact IT for account access, laptop setup, VPN, approved applications, network access, and technical incidents.

Create a support ticket with a clear title, issue description, impact, and any safe troubleshooting details.

Never include passwords, one-time passcodes, or recovery codes in a ticket.

6. First-week checklist

Confirm access to required company systems.

Complete assigned security and compliance training.

Meet your manager and understand team responsibilities.

Review the employee handbook and escalation contacts.

Ask HR or IT for help through the official support process if access or onboarding tasks are blocked.

7. Example questions for the helpdesk assistant

What should I complete during my first week?

How should I activate my company account securely?
