Sample Employee HR Policy

PeopleDesk AI demonstration document — fictional company policy

Important notice

This document contains fictional sample policies created only to test the Company Helpdesk Agent project. It is not an actual employer policy. Replace these rules with your organization's approved HR policies before using the application for real employees.

1. Annual leave allowances

For this demonstration, a full-time employee receives 12 casual leave days and 10 sick leave days per calendar year.

Leave balances are maintained in the HR system. The balance shown by the application is a demonstration database value and may not reflect a real company's entitlement.

Leave allowances for part-time employees, probationers, contractors, and employees joining partway through the year may differ under an actual company policy.

2. Applying for leave

Employees should submit a leave request through the designated HR system, specifying the leave type, start date, end date, and reason.

Requests remain Pending until reviewed by an authorized manager or HR representative. Submitting a request does not mean it has been approved.

Employees should wait for approval before treating planned leave as confirmed, except where applicable law or an approved emergency procedure provides otherwise.

3. Leave counting and balance

For this sample policy, leave is counted by calendar day from the start date through the end date, inclusive. Actual employers may count working days instead.

The demonstration system checks whether the available balance is sufficient when a request is submitted. A production system should deduct leave only after approval and should handle cancellations and balance adjustments.

4. Sick leave

Employees should notify their manager as soon as practical when illness prevents them from working.

An actual company may require supporting documentation for longer absences, subject to local law and company policy. This sample does not define a medical-documentation threshold.

5. Questions and corrections

For questions about entitlement, approvals, or a balance discrepancy, contact the HR team or the designated leave administrator.

Do not enter sensitive medical details into a general IT support ticket.

6. Example questions for the helpdesk assistant

How many casual leave days are provided in this sample policy?

What is the difference between submitting and approving leave?

Who should I contact if my leave balance looks incorrect?

For demonstration and software testing only. This document is not legal, medical, security, or official company advice.